

2019 Program Draft April 15, 2019

Boston, MA
Westin Copley Place
May 23-26, 2019

This on-line, unformatted draft of the program is designed to provide information to participants in our 30th annual conference and to enable the timely corrections of any errors or to incorporate final changes. Questions as well as any errors spotted in the program should be directed to the attention of the conference director at carr@georgiasouthern.edu before April 15th.

If something prevents you from presenting your paper, please notify the chair of your panel and the conference director as soon as possible.

The program will go to press May 1. Printed programs will be provided at the conference registration table.

Audio-Visual Equipment: This on-line program lists the audio-visual equipment that has been requested for each panel. Please note that it will be difficult to add audio-visual equipment not requested in the original proposals. The ALA normally provides a digital projector and screen; individuals will need to provide their own laptops, and those using Macs are advised to bring along the proper cable to hook up with the projector. Each presentation room has a podium mic. Additional audio-visual requests will be considered, but are not guaranteed. Please note that we no longer provide vcrs or overhead projectors or tape players.

Registration and Hotel: Participants should preregister for the conference by going to the website at www.americanliteratureassociation.org and either completing registration on line, which allows you to pay with a credit card, or by completing the registration form and mailing it along with the appropriate check to the address indicated. Participants who have not registered by May 1st will be dropped from the program.

It is important that you make your hotel reservations soon since we normally fill up our room block by early April.

Thank you for your support of the American Literature Association

The Old Corner Bookstore; or Why is the Most Important
Literary Site in Boston a Fast-Food Court?

Built in 1718 on the site of Anne Hutchinson's cottage, the Old Corner Bookstore turned 300 last year with little fanfare or fuss. As one approaches it on the Freedom Trail, one finds its most conspicuous, street-level spaces operating as fast-food restaurants. Only two sentences on a tiny plaque take note of its place in the development of American literature. Unfortunately, Historic Boston Inc., the nonprofit that owns the building, continues to resist efforts to devote all or some of the structure to celebrating its rich heritage. This roundtable will consider how we got to this point and how the problem can be solved.

1:00-3:00 pm
(Houghton Library, Harvard University, Cambridge)
The Howells Archive

The William Dean Howells Society is pleased to announce a special event to be held at Harvard University's Houghton Library in conjunction with the 30th Annual Conference of the American Literature Association.

Please join us for this rare opportunity to view a selection of documents from the Houghton's Howells archive. The library's collection includes book manuscripts, unpublished works, personal belongings, and a substantial collection of Howells's correspondence with friends, family, Presidents of the United States, and colleagues such as Mark Twain, Henry James, Stephen Crane, Theodore Dreiser, Paul Laurence Dunbar, Ralph Waldo Emerson, Mary Wilkins Freeman, Hamlin Garland, Charlotte Perkins Gilman, Bret Harte, Sarah Orne Jewett, Frank Norris, Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, Harriet Beecher Stowe, and many others.

Space is limited for this special exhibit. For this reason, and so we can plan accordingly, we ask that all those who are interested in attending RSVP to Andrew Ball (ball@math.harvard.edu). We welcome members of the William Dean Howells Society as well as members of other author societies.

Travelling from the Westin in Copley Square to Harvard University is relatively quick and easy. Detailed directions will be provided to attendees prior to the event.

The William Dean Howells Society is pleased to offer this hands-on opportunity to examine treasured American literary artifacts. Pre-register today to reserve your place!

Sherwood Anderson's "Hands": A Screening of John Canemaker's Animated Film

Animator John Canemaker and producer Peggy Stern, Academy Awards winners in 2005 for their animated short film The Moon and the Son: An Imagined Conversation, have collaborated on an animated adaptation of Sherwood Anderson's "Hands." The filmmakers consider this a unique opportunity to explore the story's emotional and psychological range by means of hand-drawn, character-driven animation. The project is fortunate to have another Academy Award-winning talent, actress Estelle Parsons, performing on the film's audio track.

The film runs approximately 15 minutes. This rough cut is 90% completed, lacking music and sound effects. There will be a discussion with the filmmakers following the screening.

African American Literature and Culture Society & Pauline E. Hopkins
Society Anniversary Reception
Reading and Awards Ceremony

Reading of works by John Edgar Wideman, recipient of the 2019 Stephen
E. Henderson Award for Outstanding Achievement in Prose
Presentation of the Darwin T. Turner Award to Keith Byerman

John Edgar Wideman, our Henderson Award recipient, needs no introduction. From his first novel A Glance Away to his most recent collection American Histories, Wideman's writing career spans five decades during which he has asserted himself as one of the most singular voices in American literature. Wideman's works have been widely celebrated: he has notably won the International PEN/Faulkner Award twice for Sent for You Yesterday (1984) and for Philadelphia Fire (1990), which also won the American Book Award. His novel The Cattle Killing won the James Fenimore Cooper prize for best historical fiction in 1997. In 1993, he was the recipient of a Macarthur Genius Grant, and most recently in 2016 was elected to the American Academy of the Arts and Letters. Wideman founded and chaired the African American Studies department at the University of Pennsylvania. He has also taught at the University of Wyoming, the University of Massachusetts and Brown University.

Keith Byerman, our Turner Award recipient, is Professor in the Department of English at Indiana State University and current president of the John Edgar Wideman Society. He is the author of eight books from Fingering the Jagged Grain: Tradition and Form in Recent Black Fiction (1986) to The Life and Works of John Edgar Wideman (2013). He has been Associate Editor for the African American Review and has notably published in College Literature, ALH, CLA Journal, MELUS. Keith is a founding member of the African American Literature and Culture Society and has been Treasurer of the Society for many years.

The Pauline Elizabeth Hopkins Society and Arminda Thomas present
a reading of Pauline Elizabeth Hopkins's critically acclaimed play Peculiar Sam; or the Underground Railroad (1879)

Pauline Hopkins's Peculiar Sam, or The Underground Railroad, a musical piece in four acts, is considered to be the earliest extant professional play by an African American woman. The Congregational Publishing Society of Boston awarded Hopkins the Playwright's Award in 1880 in recognition of the praise and popularity the work earned during its tour in New England and across America. Using plantation songs, ballads, and spirituals as the basis for her score, Hopkins subverts the plantation tradition with this story of several escaped slaves, led by the irrepressible titular character, and their route to freedom, love, and success.

This production is made possible through the generous support of the African American Literature and Culture Society, Broadview Press, Kate Chopin International Society, Toni Morrison Society, Sam Houston State University, University of Houston-Downtown, and Salisbury University

Literary Site in Boston a Fast-Food Court?

Built in 1718 on the site of Anne Hutchinson's cottage, the Old Corner Bookstore turned 300 last year with little fanfare or fuss. As one approaches it on the Freedom Trail, one finds its most conspicuous, street-level spaces operating as fast-food restaurants. Only two sentences on a tiny plaque take note of its place in the development of American literature. Unfortunately, Historic Boston Inc., the nonprofit that owns the building, continues to resist efforts to devote all or some of the structure to celebrating its rich heritage. This roundtable will consider how we got to this point and how the problem can be solved.

Organizer and Participant: Paul Lewis, Boston College

Session 13-F Sherwood Anderson's "Hands": A Screening of John Canemaker's Animated Film

Organized by: The Cinema Television Literature Association

Animator John Canemaker and producer Peggy Stern, Academy Awards winners in 2005 for their animated short film The Moon and the Son: An Imagined Conversation, have collaborated on an animated adaptation of Sherwood Anderson's "Hands." The filmmakers consider this a unique opportunity to explore the story's emotional and psychological range by means of hand-drawn, character-driven animation. The project is fortunate to have another Academy Award-winning talent, actress Estelle Parsons, performing on the film's audio track.

The film runs approximately 15 minutes. This rough cut is 90% completed, lacking music and sound effects. There will be a discussion with the filmmakers following the screening.

Society Anniversary Reception
Reading and Awards Ceremony

Reading of works by John Edgar Wideman, recipient of the 2019 Stephen E. Henderson Award for Outstanding Achievement in Prose
Presentation of the Darwin T. Turner Award to Keith Byerman

John Edgar Wideman, our Henderson Award recipient, needs no introduction. From his first novel A Glance Away to his most recent collection American Histories, Wideman's writing career spans five decades during which he has asserted himself as one of the most singular voices in American literature. Wideman's works have been widely celebrated: he has notably won the International PEN/Faulkner Award twice for Sent for You Yesterday (1984) and for Philadelphia Fire (1990), which also won the American Book Award. His novel The Cattle Killing won the James Fenimore Cooper prize for best historical fiction in 1997. In 1993, he was the recipient of a Macarthur Genius Grant, and most recently in 2016 was elected to the American Academy of the Arts and Letters. Wideman founded and chaired the African American Studies department at the University of Pennsylvania. He has also taught at the University of Wyoming, the University of Massachusetts and Brown University.

Keith Byerman, our Turner Award recipient, is Professor in the Department of English at Indiana State University and current president of the John Edgar Wideman Society. He is the author of eight books from Fingering the Jagged Grain: Tradition and Form in Recent Black Fiction (1986) to The Life and Works of John Edgar Wideman (2013). He has been Associate Editor for the African American Review and has notably published in College Literature, ALH,CLA Journal, MELUS. Keith is a founding member of the African American Literature and Culture Society and has been Treasurer of the Society for many years.

The Pauline Elizabeth Hopkins Society and Arminda Thomas present
a reading of Pauline Elizabeth Hopkins's critically acclaimed play *Peculiar
Sam; or the Underground Railroad (1879)

Pauline Hopkins's Peculiar Sam, or The Underground Railroad, a musical piece in four acts, is considered to be the earliest extant professional play by an African American woman. The Congregational Publishing Society of Boston awarded Hopkins the Playwright's Award in 1880 in recognition of the praise and popularity the work earned during its tour in New England and across America. Using plantation songs, ballads, and spirituals as the basis for her score, Hopkins subverts the plantation tradition with this story of several escaped slaves, led by the irrepressible titular character, and their route to freedom, love, and success.

This production is made possible through the generous support of the African American Literature and Culture Society, Broadview Press, The Kate Chopin International Society, The Toni Morrison Society, Sam Houston State University, The University of Houston-Downtown, and Salisbury University
