The American Short Story: New Considerations

A Symposium Sponsored by the Society for the Study of the American Short Story and the American Literature Association

Symposium Director: James Nagel, University of Georgia

Acknowledgments:

The conference director wishes to express his appreciation to a number of people who provided help with planning the program, especially my colleagues in the Society for the Study of the American Short Story. Olivia Carr Edenfield, Executive Coordinator of American Literature Association, handled registration as well as all hotel logistics and arrangements. Oliver Scheiding, Johannes Gutenberg-Universität, served as International Coordinator, advertising the symposium in Europe and encouraging colleagues in American Studies to attend. Many other people contributed time and effort in constructing panels and other aspects of the program, among them Emily Pittman and Konner Smith, Executive Assistants of the ALA, as well as Robert Clark, Kirk Curnutt, Vicki Aarons, Shirley Samuels, Gloria Cronin, and a score of other scholars across the country who formed panels for this meeting. Their contributions have made the organizing of the event a pleasure. I offer special thanks to Alfred Bendixen and Olivia Carr Edenfield of the American Literature Association, whose generous assistance added enormously to the success of the symposium.
