Announcements

Facemasks: Anyone registered for the Symposium who is also staying at the DeSoto may request a free cloth facemask, available while supplies last from the Symposium’s Registration Desk. The O’Connor-themed facemasks were created by Carrie Gradin. The Georgia College English Department contributed funds for the providing of facemasks.

Touring the Flannery O’Connor Childhood Home: Symposium participants who cannot make the Thursday afternoon walking tour may e-mail foundation manager Cody Shelley of the Flannery O’Connor Childhood Home at cody@flanneryoconnorhome.org to arrange for a visit at another time.

Visiting Georgia College’s Flannery O’Connor Collection: Anyone inspired to visit the Flannery O’Connor Collection at the Georgia College Library in Milledgeville should be aware that while the Special Collections section of the Library will be under construction this fall to expand the space devoted to Special Collections — and that there will be some noise — Special Collections is indeed open for business. To set up an appointment to visit, e-mail scinfo@gcsu.edu.

Minrose Gwin is the author of the novels The Queen of Palmyra, a Barnes & Noble Discover Great New Writers pick and finalist for the John Gardner Fiction Book Award; Promise, which was shortlisted for the Willie Morris Award in Southern Literature; and The Accidentals, which received the Mississippi Institute for Arts and Letters Award in Fiction in 2020 and from which she will read at the conference. She has also published a memoir, Wishing for Snow, about the collision of poetry and psychosis in her mother’s life, and four books of literary and cultural criticism, most recently Remembering Medgar Evers: Writing the Long Civil Rights Movement. She is coeditor of The Literature of the American South, a Norton anthology.

She began her writing career as a journalist and later taught at universities across the country, most recently the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Like the characters in her novel Promise, she grew up in Tupelo, Mississippi.
